

Research articles

The world is full of articles. Scholars want peer-reviewed journal articles. Peer reviewed articles are not difficult to find if you know where and how to look. Google has made part of the process very easy. <http://scholar.google.com> allows you to use the Google interface to search for scholarly articles!

Step 1:

Google's scholar website, helps you figure out which articles. Then you can go to the Nova Southeastern Library to actually get those articles. To do so, use Journal Finder. You'll have to login with you library username and password.

Step 2:

Step2 (plan B) - If our library does not have the article you are looking for login to ILLiad. This is an interlibrary loan request system. If you use this system they will likely have the article for you within days.

Below the header is a navigation bar with links: Patron Portals, Electronic Resources, Services, About Us, Help, and Home. A search bar is also present. The main content area is titled "WELCOME" and features several sections: "NSU Community" (Local Students, Faculty &amp; Staff, Distance Students, Alumni), "Research/Homework" (Library Guides, NovaCat Catalog, Databases, Journal Finder, New Material, RSS), "Services" (Hours, Renewals, Holds, Staff Directory, Ask a Librarian, Public Library Services, Document Delivery/ILLiad, Reference, Library Instruction), "Broward County Community" (Adults &amp; Seniors, Teens, Kids, Card application, Solicitud de tarjeta), "Happenings @ the Library" (Events Calendar, Artwork, Exhibits, Programs), and "In the Spotlight" (Key Business Ratios, First Year Reading Program, Business Source Premier, Career Resources). On the right side, there is a "FEATURED EVENTS" section listing events for Wednesday, Thursday, and Sunday. The "Journal Finder" link in the "Research/Homework" section is circled in red.
